EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

we we have been in the habit of stating the average weekly increase in the circulaion of the Passas at five hundred. This has by some, been considered an exaggeration, or at least a specimen of that loose talk in which newspaper men indulge when such subjects are spoken of. In order to convince our friends that we intend no deception, we will state that our actual increase during the week closing yesterday was exactly five hundred and seventy-two.

Religious Bigotry Two Cases Contrasted. "It is but a few days since many of our best citizens were exasperated at what seemed to be the perverse determination of a Judge to doom a little girl six years of age, once snatched from ruin, to a life of infamy."

The foregoing is taken from an article in yesterday's Gazette, entitled "An Appeal in Behalf of the Young Outcasts of Cincinnati." The article itself, a column in length, is one of those twaddling efforts which belong to the advocacy of the perfunctory institutional charities of these days -a compound of statistics and stupidity, unenlivened by the evidence of a particle of knowledge of the human character-the first requisite in such as write upon that order of subjects. But it is alone with the quotation above that we have to

The incident referred to was the attempt of the Judge of the Probate Court of this County to restore a child to its parents, from whom it was withholden without legal right on the part of its detainers. To resist the decree of the Court in the premises, a mob was audibly hoped-for, by a highly-respected citizen, whose age should have taught him better things-the moral effect of which was to retard the processes of public justice, with what ultimate influence over the condition of the parties immediately interested-if any-we have not learned.

When, a few months ago, a Hebrew child was "torn from its parents," by certain ecclesiastics of the Roman Church, in Italy, baptized and sent to school, all Protestant Christendom was in a fever of excitement at this outrage of parental rights. Europe and America resounded with the cry raised in behalf of violated natural affection, governments were solicited to interfere, and many wondered why our President, in conjunction with Queen Victoria, did not proceed at once to demolish the Scarlet Woman of Rome, and all her aiders and abettors, confederates and machinery. The tears and sufferings, and pains and scruples of the bereaved father and mother were painted by free hands and glowing fancies, and a case of hardship, such as could not fail to arouse feelings of indignation in the dullest bosoms, was pre-

It is a little strange that those parental rights and feelings which we were so prone to recognize and so anxious to see vindicated, in the case of the Jew, seem to lose all their importance in the case of an Irishman. Their recognition by a sworn officer of the law is termed, by a highly respectable newspaper, a "perverse determination," and to give them legal force is spoken of as delivering a child "to a life of infamy." It may be that the apparent condition of the child would not be bettered by a just administration of the law: but what of that? Indeed, who knows, or has the authority to judge and determine, which custody of the two is best for the future woman? And what parent would be willing to permit his own rights to depend upon the question as to what a mob may think of the manner in which he may exercise them?

The truth is, persecuting bigotry, born of perverted religious feeling is at the bottom of the whole affair, and explains all its phenomtide turned, and nothing can more easily be overlooked than these same sacred parental franchises. Does anybody suppose that had the child gone from a Protestant into a Catholic family, our cotemporary would have thought a determination of the Judge to restore it to its parents "perverse," or such restoration a "dooming" of it "to a life of infamy?"

Pugillam and Politics-Marrissey's Deserts. In old times the glory of the prize ring was fair play. A stand up fight, and let the better man win, was the universal sentiment, Antagonists were not necessarily foes; and the chagrin of defeat was not supposed to be aggravated by feelings of disappointed malice. No iff-will was bred in the community by the vicissitudes of the combat; and if there were any who doubted whether the result was conclusive upon the question of superiority, there was an universal willingness to try it over again.

In respect to fair play the ring has degenerated. The association of prize-fighters with politicians-in fact, the intermingling of the profession of prize-fighter and politicianhas had the effect to depreciate the morals of the former to the extent that there is scarcely more of the spirit of fair play to be found in the ring than in a caucus of party wire-workers collected to nominate a candidate for the Presidency.

This bringing of the vices of political into pugilistic circles is unfortunate; and the dishonorable practices which have been thereby inaugurated in the latter, are strong testimonials of the malignity of that disease, which does so taint all with which it comes in contact. John Morrissey was, perhaps, before he became a politician, an honorable man-full of fight for the love of glory, but with no disposition to take unfair advantages. Becoming a party tool, a gambler and desparado, be first ventures beyond his means, and-precisely as politicians of Charleston are now doinghedges, resorts to tricks, and finally turns ruffian and employs every unfair device, to win that to which he is not entitled, or to save himself from losses impending and deserved.

Morrissey will return home disgraced. Hereafter he will be remembered by the American people as the representative of Whatever may be the opinions of the people upon the abstract merits of prizetighting, there will be among honorable men no dispute as to the deserts of one who has thus publicly made the ring still more unlovely by fraud and ruffianism. Say what we will, look at it as we may, the people

Permanent Fair Grounds and Park. cal Association have a project before the public for purchasing the Queen City Trot-ting Park for permanent fair grounds, in which all the agricultural and mechanical exhibitions can be combined and provided with substantial structures and with all the onveniencies and ornamental appendages which may be built up by devoting the expenditures of all the fairs to permanent grounds, instead of dissipating them an-structures, as is now the custom. The intended grounds include eighty acres and it is proposed to place them in a high state of cultivation and ornamentation, and make them into an attractive park for public resort under proper regulations. The park is five miles from the city, and will be accessiole by the Hamilton and Dayton Railroad (double track), which proposes to issue tickets for the round trip at twenty-five cents, by a double track street railroad and by two turnpikes, as well as by the Miami Canal, making t practically as convenient as any park which can be obtained for this city.

It is not difficult to see that if the project is carried out, the park will become a prominent feature of the city, aside from its purpose for fairs and exhibitions. It will be the "breathng-place" so much talked of, where parties and families can go for a day in the country secure from annoyances, the center of attrac tion for carriages and equestrians; and while providing an attractive addition to the city, it promises a fair return for the investment. It is proposed to form a stock company to raise the necessary funds for the enterprise. and books of subscription are now open a the Merchants' Exchange, Manufacturers' and Mechanics' Exchange, and at the offices of Miles Greenwood, Robert Mitchell and Alexander R. Latta.

The Benefit of a Visit from the Prince of Wales to this Country.

It appears from a leading article in the London Morning Herald, a high Tory authority, that the visit of the Prince of Wales to Canada is likely to be extended to the United States, and on this subject that journal remarks.

United States, and on this subject that journal remarks:

"We care not for anile prejudices against republics abroad, neither do we sympathize with those who see no virtues in political constitutions which differ from their own, much less do we feel horrified at the thought of entrusting a Prince of Wales to the democracy of the Far West. After all, he will be committed to the hands of Britons within one or two removes, and already we fancy we hear the responsive throb which shall send forth a truly Saxon echo. Now, too, in particular, is it politic and wise to recall and resume as far as possible the relations of bygone days between the different branches of the Anglo-Saxon race. Let the colonies bygone days between the different branches of the Anglo-Saxon race. Let the colonies of England receive that measure of deference and regard which Anglo-Saxons ever did and will vindicate, and they will prove the prop and support of Great Britain. But let us take a still wider range of view. Why not rise to the capacity of the race, and knit together every tribe and people of Anglo-Saxon blood in one indissoluble confederation? It has vanquished the East and the West, the North and the South; it has peopled islands and continents; its navies cover the seas, and its armies have conquered the hosts of earth. What could not the Anglo-Saxon race achieve were it at liberty to go forth united on the conquest of civilization and Christianity? We trust the visit of the Prince of Wales to America may contribute to these anity? We trust the visit of the Prince of Wales to America may contribute to these glorious results for the welfare and happiness of the whole human family.

Fire in Cairo from Spontaneous Combus-tion of Hay.—A day or two since, a fire oc-curred in Cairo, Ill., in the rear part of the post office building, a two-story frame house, owned by Child, Pratt & Co., of St. Louis. This was entirely consumed, but the mails and greater part of the post-office furniture were saved. A one-story frame adjoining and greater part of the post-office furniture were saved. A one-story frame adjoining was saved in a damaged condidition, and another small frame was torn down to prevent the fire from spreading. Mr. W. Winter's tin and stove store was badly damaged. The loss is roughly estimated at $6,000, on which there was but little insurance. The fire originated from spontaneous combustion in a lot of hay in the rear of the postoffice.

the whole affair, and explains all its phenomena. In Italy the wrongful holders of the child were Catholics; therefore, is the cry to vindicate parental rights; in Cincinnati, the parents are Catholics; and therefore has the at Company with Singar Eduly Catholics. at Copenhagan, with Signor F. Della Valle, Marquis of Cassanova, brother to the present Duke of Ventignano. The Queen of Denmark bonored the ccremony with her presence. The bridesmaids were two sisters of the bride, the three Misses Brougham, nicces of the well-known member of the House of Lords of that name, and the Baroness of Holstein.

A MERCHANT RUNS AWAY FROM HIS CREDITORS, AND HIS CLERK WITH HIS WIFE.—A man, his wife and a young clerk, from Fall River, Massachusetts, arrived in Troy, New York, last week, where they intended locongmence business. On Sunday, the young fellow eloped with the woman, going westward, for which the husband did not care, as they had left the baggage. [We think the real baggage had gone on.—Ed.] But, unfortunately for him, he had the baggage checked in the young man's name to deceive his Massachusetts creditors, and, of course, could not legally take possession. The property is consequently held until the young friend shall either return the checks, or send the wife back with them.

The Profess Way to Manage Horses.—
Never attempt to clean or otherwise disturb your horse while cating his meals, unless you want him to bite and kick, says the New England Farmer. But when you clean, take him out of the stall, and make a business of it. The your horse in the center of the stall, unless you want your horse to do as most horses do, drive more on one rein than on the other. Horses that are liable to cast themselves in their stalls, should be tied with a neck halter, giving them much more freedom of the head than the nose halter. Gentleness, firmness, and moderation will subdue the most obdurate.

A Distratic Wauss.—A gentleman of Indianapolis, says the Sentime!, for years accustomed to luxurious living, is now winning a bet of forty dollars in a manner that surprises his friends. The bet is that he is to live four weeks on three dollars, or seventy-five cents per week, and to abstain entirely from the use of wine, ale, beer, spirits, or any liquid beverage save water. He is on his third week, and looks as hale and hearty as he ever did when as a bon visual, his admirable stomach was the bevy of epicures and gormands.

STARTING BRANCHES ON PEAR THEES.—A writer in the Virginia Farm Journal states that he has succeeded in starting branches on his pear trees wherever he wishes a limb to grow. He says: A careful examination will show plenty of dormant eyes, or knurls, on the stock. To produce a shoot, a slit or gash is made over the eye, and into the wood, with a knife or fine saw, which, by checking the flow of sap, starts these dormant eyes into life, and in three cases out of four a branch shoots forth.

THE CATTLE SCAUGHTER IN MASSACHUSETTS. The number of diseased cattle slain to prevent contegion in Massachusetts, under a law, since the late distamper broke out, has exhausted one-half of the State appropriation of $10,000. It has been found that the appropriation will be greatly inadequate.

INTERESTING PARTICULARS OF THE PRIZE FIGHT.

cat in England Something About nampious 9500,000 Watered on rest-Sayers's and Recumn's Share The London correspondent of the New York Herald, writes on the 14th instant-four days previous to the great fight.

The latest account from Sayers and Heenan represent them both to be in fine condition, and both confident of success. Up to this time the English people who take any interest in these matters, scarcely know what to think of the boldness of Heenan, a man who never appeared in the ring but once, and then was defeated, in crossing the Atlantic to fight the champion of England, the hero of a dozen fights, who never was beaten but once. They say that he must either be very "soft," or must have some good reason to believe he will be successful. previous to the great fight. aually on various temporary places and

THE BETTING ON THE RESULT. The betting still continues seven to four on Sayers, and although there have been a few small sums laid at two to one, this, for the last fortnight, has been the state of the odds. Of course it is impossible to be very accurate in such a supposition; but a gentleman well posted in sporting circles tells me that he thinks at least a hundred thousand pounds will change hands in England on the result of this fight.

MORRISSEY'S TREACHERY.

Morrissey, who has been to Newmarket, posting Sayers up as to Heenan's mode of fighting, has returned to London, and will remain here up to the eve of the encounter.

CONDITIONS OF WEARING THE BELT. The fight, you know, is for £200 as side and the champion's belt. According to the rules of the English ring, the holder of the champion's belt is required to fight any man, of whatever weight, size or country, for three years after it comes into his possession, a period of six months being allowed to elapse between the fights. At the end of three years the belt belongs to the champion. Sayers's time of probation will expire in June, and should he conquer Heenan he will then be entitled to the belt; and he has stated that, win or lose, he will never fight again, but will retire from the arena in which he has given and received so many hard knocks. Should Heenan win the belt, I should think he would be in a worse condition even than the man who won the elephant in the raffle, for he will be so beset with challenges that he will certainly have to fight for it every six months for the three years to come. The fight, you know, is for £200 a side and years to come. HAYERS'S AND HEENAN'S SHARE OF PROPITS.

If tickets are sold to all who wish to buy them, the men will make an inconsiderable sum from this source. The tickets are put at £3 3s.—about fifteen dollars and a half a piece—and this is to be divided between the railway company who furnish the train and the men themselves. Probably not less than three thousand tickets will be sold, and this will give Heenan and Sayers each as their share about twelve thousand dollars. em, the men will make an inconsiderable

THE CONDITION OF THE FIGHTERS. Bella Life thus refers to the condition of

Heenan and Sayers:

Bofore leaving Derby, Heenan stripped and was examined by an old and well-tried pugilist, and a good judge of condition, on Saturday evening, and is, by him, reported to us to be in really first-rate condition. His mug was rather fleshy, which is easily accounted for by his exercise being stopped, and his feet were tender after the run he had to escape from the powers that be; but otherwise there was not a fault to be found anywhere.

Tom Sayers has remained all along at Newmarket unmolested, and we are informed has left no stone unturned to bring himself fit to the post. His weight during the week has been lost. 9lb., and we are informed that when he fights he will not, including his boots, exceed 10st. 10lb. or 10st. 11lb. If this be so, he must be as well as his best friends can desire. He, like Heenan, is extremely confident as to the result, and is in high spirits. Heenan and Sayers:

The Sporting Life observes of Sayers: The English champion is as confident as if Heenan's sponge was already threwn up, at the same time he has made up his mind not to hold "Benicia's Child" too cheap, and although he has every reliance on his prowess, he will not throw an opportunity away of obtaining the honor of an early and decided victory. Heenan's party are equally satisfied with their man. Notwithstanding the vexatious difficulties with which he has been surrounded, he is now going on as well as his partizans can desire, and will come into the ring fit to fight for his life.

An Apology for Heeran's Persecution. SAYER'S CONFIDENCE.

AN APOLOGY FOR HEREAN'S PERSECUTION. The same number of the above journal then promises for Heenan what, it seems, was not granted him on the day of the fightfair play, and says;

fair play, and says;

He has been hunted from Wiltshire, Somersetshire, Cambridgeshire, Northamptonshire, Leicestershire, and Derbyshire, and he certainly has some ground for the complaint that he has been persecuted, while Sayers has been unmolested. This, doubtless, will strike the American public as somewhat odd, and will not give them a very explicit criping of the American public as somewhat odd, and will not give them a very exalted opinion of our spirit of fair play. We beg to assure them, however, that it has arisen entirely from the mischance of his tumbling among meddling people, and not from any desire of the country generally to annoy a stranger who has placed himself so unreservedly in our hands. That all true lovers of milling will allow him, and, indeed, insist on his obtaining fair play when ever he does fight, we are very confident, and, what ever may be the result, we guarantee that he shall have no cause for complaint on that head.

PROPOSED PRACTICE OF CHEMISTRY AT THE PROPOSED PARCTICE OF CHEMISTRY AT THE BAR.—A correspondent of the National Intelligencer inquires why drinkers do not provide themselves with litmus paper, with which to test every glass of liquor they take. That would be practical chemistry. We fear that after a few analyses or tests in the course of an evening, the process would be a very efficient safe guard against the evils which it is designed to prevent. But the zeal for chemidesigned to prevent. But the zeal for chemi-cal pursuits would doubtless be increased by this innovation. We should very probably hear numerous invitations given at the cor-ners of the streets to "take a test." Saloons would be called laboratories.

A TRLEGRAPHIC OPERATOR FATALLY PARALYZED BY LIGHTNING.—The Marietta (Ohio) Intelligencer announces the death of George L. Slocomb, of that city, who was for some time in the employ of the Marietta and Cincinnati Railroad, as a telegraphic operator. A few weeks since, while he was sitting at the instrument in his office, during the prevalence of a heavy storm, the lightning ran in upon the wires and completely stunned him. A few days developed the horrible fact that his limbs were paralyzed and his muscles almost totally deprived of action. This paralyzis gradually extended over the body until death ended his affliction.

GIPSIRS IN KRNTUCKY .- A band of Gipsier Gipsies is Kestucky.—A band of Gipsies have encamped near Spencer, Owen County. There is quite a crowd of them, and they attract large numbers of curious visitors. The men are horse-jockies, and quite a brisk trade is carried on between them and the citizens, who have a taste for horse-flesh. When they passed through town they made a regular procession, having fifteen wagons, thirty horses and any quantity of plunder.

A VERY FAST FEMALE MASQUERADING.— A Miss Caroline Walters, of Norfolk, Va., re-cently visited Richmond, where, donning the apparel of the sterner sex, and assuming the name of Chas. Walters, she cut up some de cidedly queer pranks in that staid and sober community, swearing like a trooper, chewing tobacco, drinking brandy "straight," escort-ing young ladies and gentlemen to the theater, and taking them to—no matter where.
